Situation

A United States Army soldier was arrested in Gloucester Tuesday afternoon in cooperation with UK counterterrorism forces on suspicion of collusion and cooperation with Russian Federation intelligence assets. While initial investigations have closed information spills within the U.S. military apparatus in the UK, relevant hostile intelligence operations are believed to still be operational in the region. Army command in Wiesbaden have been notified and are investigating possible additional leaks.

Recommended Action

The Director of National Intelligence is advised to coordinate a special counterintelligence operation against Russian Federation assets in the region. Intelligence coordination between the U.S. and regional allies is critical for success. Additional intelligence assets are requested to assess existing security vulnerabilities as well as Russian intelligence operations.

Requested Assets

Temporary expansion to Echelon operations in the region
$4 million for information security assessment/improvement (EU region wide)
