Office of the White House, Washington D.C.
1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington D.C. 8675309

From the Desk of: Press Secretary Ivy Bray

October 2026

Greetings,

As the Press Secretary of the United States it is my objective to be the Primary communication link between the media and the administration. My duty is to Serve as a Voice for the President by conducting Press Briefings as well as keep key officials up to date on current events and other key topics.

As Press Secretary I believe it's extremely important to maintain public trust through transparency of the federal government. I intend on providing the Public and Media information accurately and consistent with the administration's policies and objectives. While my responsibility is to represent the President, I believe the American people have a right to understand what decisions are made and the reasonings behind them.

During this simulation my goal will be to support the administration's agenda by speaking to the American people and international community. I will advocate for the administration's positions and decisions even when challenged by the media, to ensure the President is understood by those watching. By the end of this simulation I intend on directly communicating this administration's intentions.